I've been involved in a number of mentoring programs over the year and most recently with Vill gro
, who have an interesting take on it, where they pair an experienced mentor, with a business student. This allows a small amount of the mentors time to leverage a lot of the students time. Both the innovator, and the student gain experience from this. {
 More
}